When it comes to giving high-end designs a Pacific touch, few can be compared to Hupfeld Hoerder. Models at the World Supermodel Pageant graced the ramp walk with his designs at the Pearl South Pacific Resort and Spa in Pacific Harbour, yesterday.

Mr Hoerder said his designs bring out the Pacific beauty and culture.

The design was called 'Pacific Renaissance,' a mixture of old and new designs.

A total of 40 garments had been showcased at the fashion show including swim wear, evening and couture designs.

Supermodel contestant Miss Australia, Jessika Moore who won the Teen Supermodel earlier in June this year feels excited about the competition.

"It is really nice to be back in Fiji and there are so many things one can take back from here," the 18-year-old model said.

Supermodels from India, Japan, Brazil, United Kingdom, Czech Republic, Nigeria, Belgium, Australia, PNG, South Pacific and Oceanic Regions and host country Fiji are competing for the prestigious title.

The pageant will end on Saturday with the crowning of Miss World Supermodel and other awards in the following categories:

Winner-World Supermodel, Runner up, Second Runner-up, Miss Congeniality, Miss Photogenic, Best Evening Gown and Best Swimwear.
